NUMB. 3193

FRIDAY, JUNE 1, 1744

Naples, May 21.

HE Duke de Salas-Montalegre, Secretary of State, and Prime Minister, has been lately very much indisposed; but is, at present, perfectly recovered. It is thought his Indisposition was owing chiefly to his excessive Application in the present critical Conjunction of Affairs. He sent for some of principal Nobility the very Day before he was taken ill, and exhorted them to go down to their Estates, and that in them lay for his Majesty's Service. He told them, that it was their Interest to be Loyal, if they were ever so instrumental in another Revolution, it could only afford a fresh Proof of their Fickleness, and thereby render them suspected, even to their Masters. He shewed them likewise several Foreigners, relating to the Conquest of the County of Gascons; and exerted himself with so much Heat in this view, that it was no sooner over, than he fell indisposed. Orders have been sent to Rome, to aid the furnishing the Palace of Farnese; it being determined, that her Majesty shall not quit this town, but continue at Capua till the Campaign is over, which, it is thought, will finish sooner than has been imagined.

Edinburgh, May 29. All our Advices from the North now in a very pacifick Strain; there is only one serious Circumstance remains, and that is, the frequent Remittances that are made from Paris to Moscow and Stockholm; which we cannot conceive are intended to heighten the Eclat of their Ambassadors, or to furnish out the Expences of magnificent Entertainments, Balls, and Illuminations. It is whispered some political Mystery is concealed under the King of Russia's Journey to Piermont; the rather, because it is not at a Time when two Publick Ministers, prestidigitators for categorical Answers to the Memorials they presented in the Names of their Masters. We be in doubt, whether the present Imperial Army has an Army of Neutrality which was so much talk'd of the Month ago; at least it is certain, that his Imperial Majesty's Ministers give out, that this Army of 100,000 is not to act offensively; and that in case it is attacked, his Majesty will expect that his Cause should be duly supported by the Dyer, in Consequence of assistance given him at the Beginning of the War; which they interested themselves in his Affairs, and his Claims the Sanction of their Approbation.

and of Prince Charles's Army. From the Head Quarters at Neckers-Ulm, May 27, 1744.

The first and last Column commanded by General Pfeffing, having the Artillery under his Escort, and here on the 24th. The French attended by a Train of Volunteers of the first Distinction, went over them; and his Highness testified the highest Satisfaction with respect to the Condition which he found them in. The heavy Artillery is ordered to remain at Ingolstadt, and to be kept there in constant Readiness, to be transported wherever it may be wanted in the Course of the Campaign. On the 25th his Serene Highness, attended by several General Officers, went to Ludwigsburg; where he met the Duke Regent of Wurtemberg, with his Duchess, his Mother, and the two Sons, his Brothers. As this Interview was not at all expected, the Duke testified the utmost Joy at this noble Surprise, and received his Highness with all Demonstrations of Frankness and Confidence that possibly be desired.

On the 26th the Body of Troops that marched from Ulm, under the Command of General Berthelin, joined the Army; which is now become upwards of 100,000 strong, exclusive of the Flying Camp under command of General Berthelin. The March of so numerous an Army thro' the Circles of Suabia and Franconia, was performed with such Regularity, that the Committees of the two Circles publicly declared, that the Movements of the Empire had never been observed so vigorously, or a March conducted with better Order. On the other Side, Field Marshal Count von der Schulenburg, and all the General Officers, render the utmost Obedience to the Committees of the Circles; who disposed their Offices on this Occasion, with the utmost Convenience and Punctuality. We shall very speedily march hence; three Bridges have been already thrown over the Neckar, and all the other necessary Dispositions for that Purpose.

The last Letters from Turin inform us, that his Sardinian Majesty was about to set out for the Army, in order to take upon him the Command, and to give the necessary Directions, for making an Irruption into Savoy.

All the Letters from Paris mention the Count de Maurepas's Journey to Toulon as an Affair of the last Importance; and many People conclude, he is gone to give Directions for a new Expedition in favour of Spain.

From Amsterdam we learn, that, according to Advices from Batavia, a new Agreement has been enter'd into with the Chinese, by which they are secured from all Apprehensions on both Sides; so that the Tranquillity of that important Country is entirely restored.

Yesterday was held a Board of Admiralty, when their Lordships were pleased to put into Commission the Edinburgh, a 70 Gun Ship, lately rebuilt; and gave the Command thereof to the Hon. Cap. Fitzroy Henry Lee.

The same Day their Graces the Duke and Duchess of Richmond came to their House in Privy-Garden, Whitehall, from their Seat at Goodwood in Sussex.

As some Fishermen were fishing for Shads Yesterday at Millbank, Westminster, they caught in their Net a Surgeon upwards of six Feet long, which was expos'd to publick View; and it was afterwards carried to the Water-Bailiff, it being his Property, on paying the usual Fee to them of 13s. and 4d.

Last Wednesday a Grandson of Mr. John Hornsby, a Gardener at Millbank, (a Child about Six Years of Age) was unfortunately drown'd in a Well in the Garden.
